Working with each other.

In school, we believe that we should work WITH others. This is about being supportive, sharing feelings and allowing others to learn and grow. Restorative Practice encourages everyone to think about how they communicate with others and manage day to day experiences. Usually, we do things FOR or TO others but we should try to work WITH others. A good example is a child getting ready to go out the yard and struggling with their coat.

- ✶ A FOR person would- put the child's coat on for them.
- ✶ A TO person would- tell them to put their coat on and walk away.
- ✶ A NOT person would- ignore the child assuming they will put it on.
- ✶ A WITH person would- show the child how to put on their coat, encourage them to try themselves and help them if they need it.

Anyone can work WITH others. All you have to do is take that extra bit of time to stop, listen, support and sharing learning.
